Plant Protection Directorate

In view of the current situation, the Plant Protection Directorate would like to inform registered MOR's with new sanctions on timber and timber derived products from the Russian federation and Belarus.

Before sourcing timber products from third countries operators must always carry out a due diligence exercise and, given the current circumstances in Russia and Belarus, timber risk cannot be mitigated to negligible. Therefore, importation of products with no negligible risk would be illegal. Operators should, at this time, practice added caution when importing timber and timber products from other third countries such as Ukraine and carry out a full risk assessment on the risk of timber being illegally harvested and effectively mitigate this non-negligible risk.
